

Visual Identity Kit

Fabiana Alves Ferreira

Final version, after reviewing logo, colors, and typography throughout the process. Every decision below was tested against at least one alternative before being chosen.

Typography

Two typefaces, each with a clear role: serif used only for the name/logo (a 'masthead' effect), sans-serif everywhere else on the site — section headings, body copy, labels, CTAs.

Logo / name: Tinos (regular weight) — a free Google Fonts alternative, metrically identical to Times New Roman — used once, only for the FAF mark / full name, never as running text

Headings and CTAs: Arimo Bold

Body copy and labels: Arimo Regular

Why: the serif-name / sans-serif-everything-else contrast gives the mark personality without making the rest of the site feel 'decorated'. Total: 2 type families across the whole project (Tinos for the logo, Arimo in two weights for everything else) — within the assignment's 1-2 font limit, since 'title and body font can be the same'.

Color palette

	Text (near-black)	#1A1A1A	All body copy and headings
	Background (near-white)	#FAFAF8	Page background — warm white, not stark
	Accent	#2C5F8A	Links, CTA buttons, the favicon — used sparingly
	Neutral / borders	#E5E3DF	Divider lines, card borders — never as a primary color

Why: a muted blue-gray (not generic startup blue) reads as trustworthy without feeling like a tech cliché — consistent with 'verify before you trust', the throughline of the Proof Statement. Text/background contrast is very high (near-black on near-white), meeting the readability criterion for mobile viewing in bright light.

Logo / Favicon

'FAF' monogram (Fabiana Alves Ferreira) in Tinos, regular weight, white, inside a solid circle in the accent color. Tested against alternatives (magnifying glass, checkmark, brain icon) and chosen for being more personal, without falling into visual clichés common in the data/tech field.

FAF

No-background version (letters only) for larger uses — for example, next to the full name in the site header. The circle favicon is the one meant for the browser tab, where the icon needs to work at 16px.

Style note (paste into your AI workspace)

Fonts: Tinos, regular weight (FAF logo/mark — free Google Fonts equivalent of Times New Roman). Arimo Bold (headings and CTAs), Arimo Regular (body copy) — free Google Fonts equivalent of Arial. Colors: text #1A1A1A, background #FAFAF8, accent #2C5F8A, borders #E5E3DF.

Mood: calm, confident, direct — the work is the most eye-catching thing on the page, never the design.
